Covid pills coming, but no substitute for vaccines: Experts

REUTERS
Chicago, November 9

ORAL ANTIVIRAL PILLS from Merck & Co and Pfizer have been shown to significantly blunt the worst outcomes of Covid-19 if taken early enough, but doctors warn vaccine hesitant people not to confuse the benefit of the treatments with prevention afforded by vaccines.

While 72% of American adults have gotten a first shot of the vaccine, according to a Kaiser Family Foundation poll, the pace of vaccination has slowed, as political partisanship in the United States divides views on the value and safety of vaccines against the coronavirus.

Vaccine mandates by employers, states and the administration of US President Joe Biden have helped increase vaccinations but also fuelled that controversy.

Some disease experts fear the arrival of oral Covid-19 treatments may further impede vaccination campaigns. Preliminary results of a survey of 3,000 US citizens by the City University of New York (CUNY) School of Public Health suggest the drugs could "hamper the effort to get people vaccinated," said Scott Ratzan, an expert in health communication at CUNY, who led the research.

Ratzan said one out of every eight of those surveyed said they would rather get treated with a pill than be vaccinated. "That is a high number," Ratzan said.

The concern follows news on Friday from Pfizer, maker of a leading Covid-19 vaccine, that its experimental antiviral pill Paxlovid cut the risk of hospitalisation and death from the disease by 89% in high-risk adults.

Pfizer's results followed news from Merck and partner Ridgeback Biotherapeutics on October 1 that their oral antiviral drug cut hospitalisation and death by half.

NASA-SpaceX crew returns from record mission

REUTERS
November 9

FOUR ASTRONAUTS SAFELY returned on Monday from a record six-month NASA science mission aboard the International Space Station, splashing down with their SpaceX Crew Dragon capsule in the Gulf of Mexico at the end of a daylong flight home.

The Dragon vehicle, dubbed Endeavour, parachuted into the sea off the Florida coast as planned just after 10.30 pm EST on Monday, following a re-entry descent through Earth's atmosphere carried live by a NASA webcast.

Real-time infrared thermal video imaging captured a glimpse of the capsule streaking like a meteor through the night sky over the Gulf minutes before splashdown.

Applause was heard from the flight control centre as the four main parachutes inflated above the capsule, seen drifting down toward the Gulf surface and slowing to about 15 miles per hour (24 kph) before dropping gently into the calm sea. Endeavour, on behalf of SpaceX, welcome home to planet Earth, a voice from the SpaceX flight control centre in suburban Los Angeles was heard telling the crew as a safe splashdown was confirmed.

PM Johnson is failing to contain fallout from UK lobbying scandal

BLOOMBERG
November 9

BORIS JOHNSON IS struggling to repress the UK backlash over his defense of a ruling party lawmaker who broke lobbying rules, as even typically friendly newspapers took aim at his ruling Conservative Party.

The British prime minister on Monday refused to apologise for his decision last week to tear up parliamentary rules on standards rather than accept the suspension of Owen Paterson, a Tory MP found guilty of paid advocacy. Johnson then missed an emergency debate in the House of Commons, raising anger from his own side and opponents benefiting in the polls from the fallout.

Johnson was ultimately forced to perform a U-turn in the face of widespread condemnation over the move to protect his friend Paterson, a former minister and an early advocate of Brexit.

But the decision to intervene in the first place is now escalating into a crisis for the government, one that is sticking to the front pages and cutting through with voters. "Just say sorry for the mess, prime minister," the Conservative-leaning Daily Express headlined in its Tuesday edition.

By trying to help Paterson, Johnson has reignited broader allegations of sleaze, British media shorthand for questionable actions ranging from corruption or secretive financial arrangements.

The question is whether this is the moment that permanently takes the shine off Johnson's leadership.

There is precedent: former Tory leader John Major's premiership was sunk in the 1990s by sleaze allegations and the cash-for-questions scandal. On the flip side, Johnson's made a habit of surviving probes. Even as an investigation into the refit of his Downing Street apartment, which put the focus on his chaotic finances, hangs over him, there is a sense he's likely to get through this latest storm.
